Smile a Lot, Calendar Girl Counsels

By DONNA KOCH
"Smile a lot and wear your glasses, or get contact lenses ahead of time, like I didn't," Phyllis Lair advises aspiring Miss Sikeston contestants. She is the August calendar girl. She was a semi-finalist in the Miss Sikeston contest last summer.

Miss Lair, who usually wears glasses, said she was careful not to get close to the edge of the platform so "no one would worry about me falling off."

"The experience of competing is good for self-confidence and poise," she said. "But, practice first. Practice smiling and walking in a long dress. Wear shoes that fit! That's one thing. But it isn't like going out of town and entering something. Friends are there with you and just as scared as you are. Most of them are also inexperienced."

Miss Lair is a 1970 graduate of Sikeston high school and plans to attend Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau this fall, majoring in English and minor in journalism.

She lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley R. Lair of 322 North New Madrid, has one brother, John, serving in Vietnam with the Army, and one sister, Leslie, married, living in Cape Girardeau.

Asked about student revolt on campuses, Miss Lair stated she thinks "Communists are behind it. I think the students are ready to demonstrate and some infiltrators trying to lead them is all it takes to set them off. The need to demonstrate is caused primarily by the Vietnam war. The move into Cambodia didn't help the situation any. When Nixon moved in, I didn't believe he would withdraw like he said he'd do. But he did, and I am glad he did. You can't end smiling and walking in a long dress. Wear shoes that fit! That's one thing. But it isn't like going out of town and entering something. Friends are there with you and just as scared as you are. Most of them are also inexperienced."

Miss Lair's brother has just been made a sergeant, and is serving in a combat zone. She believes "he is just the type who likes army life, and likes to try new things. And so there he is. He likes Vietnam. He says the scenery is beautiful over there."

But, not the battle zone, she concludes. "I think the radical ones who are leading a lot of these (campus) demonstrations won't be leaders tomorrow, but the ones who stayed in the classrooms will be. "I feel it would be a better idea if the rock festival did not come to Sikeston. The general idea is good, if you can control it. But the people in this town are against it, and it is bound to turn out wrong. Most of my contemporaries are in favor of the festival, and as far as having good bands here and the entertainment, it is fine. But the drug problem would be something else."

"I think if you want it badly enough, you can get illegal drugs in Sikeston. I don't think it is a school problem here in the common. Most of them (the youth) have enough sense to stay from drugs. They know it can ruin your life... there are a few people everywhere who have to try everything. But I don't think it is a major problem here," Miss Lair concluded.

About learning her way around the campus, Miss Lair says "It will just be a new experience and I will have to adjust with time."

Israel Accepts U.S. Plan

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel accepted today the United States peace proposal for the Middle East and agreed to a three-month cease-fire with the Egyptians.

A government announcement said Israel had decided "to subscribe to the latest peace initiative of the government of the United States and to appoint, at the appropriate time, a representative for peace negotiations without prior conditions" under auspices of U.N. Middle East envoy Gunnar Jarring of Sweden.

Egypt and Jordan have already accepted the plan, but Palestinian guerrilla organizations have split on the proposal with the principal commando outfits vowing to continue the fight.

The Israeli Cabinet reached agreement at its fourth meeting on the U.S. proposal, which encountered strong opposition from rightist elements who had threatened to quit Prime Minister Golda Meir's coalition government if it accepted the American proposal.

The Israeli announcement said the decision on the ceasefire was reached after "taking into account the clarifications provided by the government of the United States."

This was taken to mean Washington's reported reassurances to Iraq that it would continue to maintain the Middle East balance of power and prevent any of the warring parties from reaping military advantage from any cease-fire.

The Israelis fear the Egyptians will use a limited ceasefire to beef up their military defenses along the Suez Canal prior to renewing the fighting.

In Cairo, a spokesman for President Gamal Abdel Nasser warned Egypt's Arab critics to avoid "division in the Arab lines" over the American plan and Nasser's acceptance.

In new air action, Israeli planes staged a reprisal raid today on Jordanian army positions following rocket attacks by Jordan-based Arab guerrillas on Israeli settlements.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the Jordanian army has been aiding the guerrillas in their assaults against civilian targets. All planes returned safely from the 25-minute raid, an Israeli spokesman said. He located the area hit as just across the border from two frontier settlements just south of the Sea of Galilee.

Nasser's spokesman, Information Minister Mohamed Hassanein Heikal said in his warning that Israel might undertake a "crazy act" if the Arabs turn their attention to matters other than the "armed struggle with the enemy."

In a full-page editorial in his newspaper, Al Ahran, Heikal defended Nasser's acceptance of the U.S. proposal as "a last chance to settle the Middle East crisis." He criticized as "childish" the stand of "certain Arab elements" opposed to the plan.

Heikal agreed with the Palestinian guerrillas and other Arab opponents of peace negotiations that the U.S. proposal will "not succeed in bringing peace. 'Nothing will succeed in our struggle with the enemy other than the power of pressure,' Heikal said. But he added that if the United States "fails to exert pressure on Israel, at least we shall place ourselves in better conditions internationally and militarily to enable us to initiate this pressure."

Heikal said the current division in the Israeli cabinet over the plan may "drive Israel to undertake a crazy act" against the Arabs, noting that similar division was present in Israel just before the 1967 war.

Meanwhile, Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, praised Nasser for his "high responsibility" in accepting the U.S. peace initiative.

In a slap at Syria, Iraq and the Palestinian guerrillas, it said Nasser had to "overcome extremist sentiments in the Arab world which were caused by the frantic extremism of the Israeli military."

The Israeli cabinet failed again Thursday to reach agreement on the American Peace plan. The cabinet met five hours — the longest of three sessions this week — in an effort to draft a reply that would satisfy right-wingers who have threatened to quit if the U.S. proposal is accepted.

PIGGOTT, Ark. (AP) — All six crewmen aboard an Air Force C-130 Hercules transport plane were killed Thursday night when the aircraft crashed and burned about one mile southwest of here.

The aircraft, attached to the 442nd Combat Training Wing at Little Rock Air Force Base, was on a training mission over northeast Arkansas, Capt. Jason Kappanadec, the base information officer, said.

In his answers Ingram said his office is "not going to be run" by anyone and added he is "not obligated to anyone" when it comes to running his office.

"No one is going to tell me how to run my office," the circuit clerk said.

Money paid in by taxpayers, however, is used to purchase supplies. Judges of the county court said it would be best if officials would spend county money in the county when possible because of this factor.

The circuit clerk noted he doesn't want to be pushed about the matter and warned if any "slant or slander" results it could merit court action on his part.

Hess Porter, county treasurer, said he purchases supplies in the county when possible. A check with the 1969 financial statement shows Porter spending $1,203.61 with the same out-of-county based firm that Ingram spent in excess of $4,000 with, Porter said ledger books in his office comprise most of the cost, but conceded some items could have been

City Seeks Storm Sewers On Widened Route 61

State highway officials held a public hearing yesterday to study preliminary design details on the proposed widening of route 61, from the North Y to the South Y.

The meeting at the Security National Bank attracted more than 25.

Representing the highway department were V. Allen Hubbard, C. A. Lawrence, H. E. Stredbo, A. J. Miederhoff, W. P. Van Arsdale and George Doyle.

W. H. Shaw, district engineer, began the hearing by explaining the proposal. The plan includes the widening and resurfacing of a 3.4 mile section of route 61 along or near the present route. It would be widened from two to four lanes.

If approved the proposed improvements would be made when funds are available.

According to Shaw the project possibly could be completed by the spring of 1973 at a cost of approximately $2.1 million.

Shaw said that seven businesses along the route would be forced to relocate because the widening would overlap their property. It was pointed out that the law provides for assistance to such businesses and that relocation could be accomplished without too much difficulty.

Those businesses include Alcorn Real Estate, Britt's Barber Shop, Standard Service Co., Port O Call building, Estes Motor Co., the Sands Gift Shop, Motel, and the Hailey's Mobil Service.

City Manager Raymet Miller commended the highway personnel of the district for their work on the project and said that the plan is well conceived and necessary to the growth of Sikeston.

He asked the commission to reconsider the preliminary design on the drainage facilities. Miller asked that possibilities be explored for installing storm sewer type drainage. An open ditch type is being planned.

Shad Old, a member of the planning and zoning commission, said that due to the growth of Sikeston the open ditch type of drainage would be ineffective in a few years. He urged the commission to consider the request made by Miller.

Shaw said that the reason storm sewer type drainage was not planned was because of the higher cost involved. "Should we let money interfere with the proper design of the street?" Miller asked. "I want to again say that I feel this plan is a necessary one and has been well thought out but I feel the highway department has a responsibility to provide adequate drainage. The city and the property owners also have the same responsibility."

A previous hearing was held in 1966. The major changes that have occurred since include redesigning medians and limited access changes.

A transcript of the hearing will be sent to the highway commission in Jefferson City, which will make the final decision.

The President countered that, while the federal government will do what it can to ease campus unrest, "it is a problem which college administrators and college faculties must face up to."

He said he thought it "very short-sighted" for university presidents and professors "to put the blame for all the problems of the universities on the government."

Nixon also was asked about statements by his campus advisers that government should recognize the reality of fears of repression among students and minority groups.

"We do not believe in repression," the President said. "It is not a government policy."

His questioner had referred to some of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's public comments, to which Nixon replied:

"I, of course, do not accept the proposition that the vice president represses people. It seems to me that people are free in speaking up about the vice president. Many of them do to me."

At several points, Nixon expressed hope for at least limited success in the strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union in Vienna. He said they were aimed at limitation of arms rather than disarmament.

He believes his order sending U.S. ground troops into Cambodia increased the prospects for a negotiated peace. He said Washington and Saigon are in agreement on negotiation policy.

The chief executive urged Congress to move quickly to pass his environmental protection measures and, referring to the smog blanket that covered much of the East Coast this week, said: "It was perhaps fortunate in a way that the East Coast saw this problem in such a massive manner. Now we realize that we don't have purched locally. Porter said a bid's program would be up to the county court.

"They approve or disapprove," Porter said. "If permitted by law I think bids would be alright."

Supplies for the collector's office with the same company mentioned used by Ingram and Porter totaled $2,329.40, according to the 1969 financial statement.

That was before the Jan. 6 resignation of Aubrey Michael as County Collector.

Tom Marshall, who was appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to fill Michael's vacancy, said he favors putting the supplies up for bids.

"I think that would be fair," Marshall said.

Marshall said he thinks elected officials should spend county tax money in the county when possible.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Our Congratulations to Judge Marshall Craig for his order granting a temporary injunction Tuesday prohibiting the holding of the Rock Festival near Sikeston.

We presume that after the promoters of the affair show cause why it should be allowed to go on that the Judge will be able to make the injunction permanent.

THE COUNTRY SOUND

Country music has come to the city and conquered it. Two national television programs are devoted largely to the country sound and at least a dozen others are available to local stations on a syndication basis. Bob Dylan, the Byrds and other rock performers have taken up the country- music idiom. Tex Ritter, the prototype singing cowboy, is running for the Senate seat of Albert Gore (D-Tenn.). Thus, the 20th annual National Championship Country Music Contest, to be held in Warrenton, Va., starting Saturday, Aug. 1, promises to be a pop music event of some consequence.

Why the sudden rise in popularity of country music? Some observers of popular culture feel that hard rock has become too strident and too concerned with drugs, war and revolution. Country songs, in contrast, usually take a gentle, sentimental approach to such topics as war ("Are There Angels in Korea?"), religion ("Mother Prays So Loud in Her Sleep"), sin ("It Wasn't God Who Made Honky-Tonk Angels") and even current events ("Amelia Earhart's Last Flight").

The Mecca of country music is, of course, Nashville, Tenn., home of Grand Ole Opry. The Opry is the oldest continuing radio show in the United States, dating from 1925, and it forms the nucleus of Nashville's $100 million-a-year music industry. Bigness has brought respectability to country music. Wheeling, W.Va., and Bakersfield, Calif. are competing to become the "second city" of country music production. And the Washington Post has observed that the Washington-Baltimore area is, surprisingly, "one of the two or three country- music capitals of the nation." If so, it makes sense to hold the Country Music Contest in Warrenton, which is only 40 miles from the nation's capital.

The Colonel said: "It is very easy for the man who isn't interested to tell the man who is to hope."

A reader sent this to our attention:

"When people and nations look to man for guidance—instead of God—they will receive the result of man's wisdom— not God's."

WHAT IS FREE ENTERPRISE?

It is generally understood by all thoughtful people that it is the free enterprise system here in America that has brought our nation from a few struggling colonies along the Atlantic seaboard to a position of preeminence among the nations of the world in the comparatively short period of one hundred seventy- five years.

The free enterprise system is the secret — if it can be called a secret- of our success. It has produced for the American people the greatest productive capacity and the highest standard of living the world has ever known.

Even so, there is considerable question as to whether the average person knows what the free enterprise system actually is or could clearly define it. We are great salesmen of our material goods, but we have trouble talking intelligently about, much less selling, our greatest product— free enterprise. We must preserve our free enterprise system if we are to remain a great nation - yet how can we preserve it if we do not understand what it is we are trying to preserve?

It would be well, therefore, for every citizen of this country to have a clear understanding of the meaning of free enterprise.

Basically, the free enterprise system means freedom of the individual. Under the free enterprise system, the individual is free to make something of himself if he has the enterprise to do it. Too many people put too much emphasis on "free" and too little emphasis on "enterprise."

There are undoubtedly many false notions concerning free enterprise. The free enterprise system is not "manna from Heaven." It doesn't mean that the world owes you a living. It doesn't mean acceptance of the "government'll-take-care-of-you" philosophy. It doesn't mean license, either. It doesn't mean that a manufacturer can operate sweatshops or that a merchant can gouge his customers.

The free enterprise system does mean that the individual is responsible for his own welfare and his own salvation, that he has the right to carve out his own destiny and chart his own future. It means that his government guarantees him opportunity - and nothing more. That is the whole philosophy of freedom; that is the concept of liberty under which this nation was founded.

Under the free enterprise system, the individual has the incentive to work and save and invest and profit thereby so long as he harms no one else in the process. His future depends upon his own ambition.

The choice is always before us. It is a choice between free enterprise and state control. It is a choice between a constitutional republican form of government and a totalitarian form of government, whether it be socialism or communism or dictatorship.

The difference between a free nation and a slave nation can be very simply stated. In a free nation, the people accept the responsibility for their own welfare; while in a slave nation that responsibility is turned over to the government. Or, to put it another way, meaning the same thing, in a free nation the state gets its rights from the people; while in a slave nation, the people get their rights, if any, from the state.

As long as people live, there will undoubtedly be those who will shirk from accepting freedom as their own responsibility. They will want their government to provide their security, guarantee them minimum wages, guarantee them full employment, guarantee them good prices for their products, guarantee them good housing, guarantee the solvency of their loans, guarantee them medical care, and many other things.

Such people are thereby choosing slavery rather than freedom. For this is the security of the penitentiary. This is the freedom of totalitarianism. This is the rejection of individual responsibility. So far as the United States of America is concerned, such choice would be a betrayal of our whole heritage and an abandonment of the philosophy under which we have grown and prospered.

URBAN LEAGUE AT 60

President Nixon's call for "patience and restraint" in civil rights may have helped slow down the movement, but the trend was already in evidence. The splintering away of extremist and moderate groups did not help the momentum. And the emphasis now must be on the techniques of achieving Negro rights—a far less dynamic cause than showing the need for them. Amid the uncertainties of the next step, the National Urban League hopes to lend some direction at its 60th annual conference beginning on Sunday, July 19, at the New York Hilton.

Executive Director Whitney M. Young, Jr., is expected to outline the future tone of the organization's activities in a keynote address. Theme of the conference is "Strategies for the 70's" and the stress seems to be on economic and political issues. Subjects up for discussion, for instance, include "Barriers to Black Participation in the American Economy" and "Realities of Power-Instrument for Change." The League has grown dramatically over the past few years. Local units are now located in 95 cities — many of them in the Deep South, a previously neglected area.

Traditionally, the League is dedicated to helping city Negroes obtain equal opportunities, especially in employment. It offers a countervailing force to the extremism of other civil rights groups. But the pull toward violence is still strong. In a recent poll quoted by Sepia (June 1970), 31 per cent of the black community believes: "We will probably have to resort to violence to win rights." This is up 10 per cent from five years ago.

When one gives it a little thought, one can readily understand why the human body wears out. The food consumed in an average lifetime would near wear out any well-traveled highway.

Let's assume the average length of human life is 70 years. Then let's look at what happens to a human in terms of Tummy Traffic in those years. In 70 years, the average human consumes:

150 head of cattle
2,400 chickens
225 lambs
26 sheep
310 swine
26 acres of grain
50 acres of fruits and vegetables
Please pass the Alka Seltzer!

Ben Franklin said it: "A man of knowledge, like a rich soil, feeds, if not a world of corn, a world of seeds."

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

These essential programs are clearly beyond reach of today's railroads in the present environment.

At the same time, the public should not have to endure the social and economic costs of a failing rail industry. If railroads cannot meet the demands of the future, the clear alternative is more slabs of concrete covering more land removed from the tax rolls, more crowded highways, greater congestion in the cities, higher consumer costs and greater air pollution.

The clear choice is not whether there will be a rail network, but what kind. The Federal government can nationalize the industry or allow it to operate privately. Either way, money will be needed to buy equipment and improve the plant.

Nationalization is the most expensive possible step. Some estimates go as high as $60 billion just to transfer ownership, without even touching the capital needs of the industry.

Nationalization, with all its costs and uncertainties, is unnecessary. A gold, but less drastic, program of creative Federal involvement can insure railroad viability.

The report contains over 30 specific recommendations for a concerted action program. They are directed at four major objectives.

Don't risk your life to show your nerve. If you think you have nerve, show it by quitting some of your bad habits that will shorten your life, such as smoking, drinking and eating too much, swearing and others.

Hal Boyle

Double talk, you remember, is saying one thing while thinking another. It is a device for saving your public face while remaining privately honest with yourself.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, here are some typical examples of modern day double talk:

"Frankly, I like the dress, but somehow it doesn't bring out the real me."—I saw the price tag.

"I really enjoy living alone, Melvin, but now and then I get swept by a feeling of unutterable loneliness. Don't you sometimes feel that way, too?"—What did I do wrong as a little girl that now, at 28, I have to try to get a jerk like Melvin to propose to me?

"Naturally, every man has a right to express his own opinion."—So why don't you write yours on a piece of paper, put it in a bottle, and float it out to sea?

"The reason I asked you to baby sit for us, Melinda, is that everyone in the neighborhood brags about what a trustworthy and responsible girl you are for your age."—Please don't teach our child to smoke pot while we're gone—she's only 3.

"Well, I guess I will have just one more if you promise to make it a real teensy-weensy one."—But you don't have to pour it from an eyedropper, like you did the other two.

"I can't wait for the beach season to start, Gloria, so I can see how you'll look in that new bikini."—But maybe we could tie it on a broomstick right now and get a good idea.

"Yeah, since I started taking exercises regularly, I can now touch my toes 50 times without —." Without getting out of bed.

"Now, Jim, why did you have to go and do that? You know I insisted we were going to go Dutch!"—Boy, that was close. The big bum almost let me pay for my own meal.

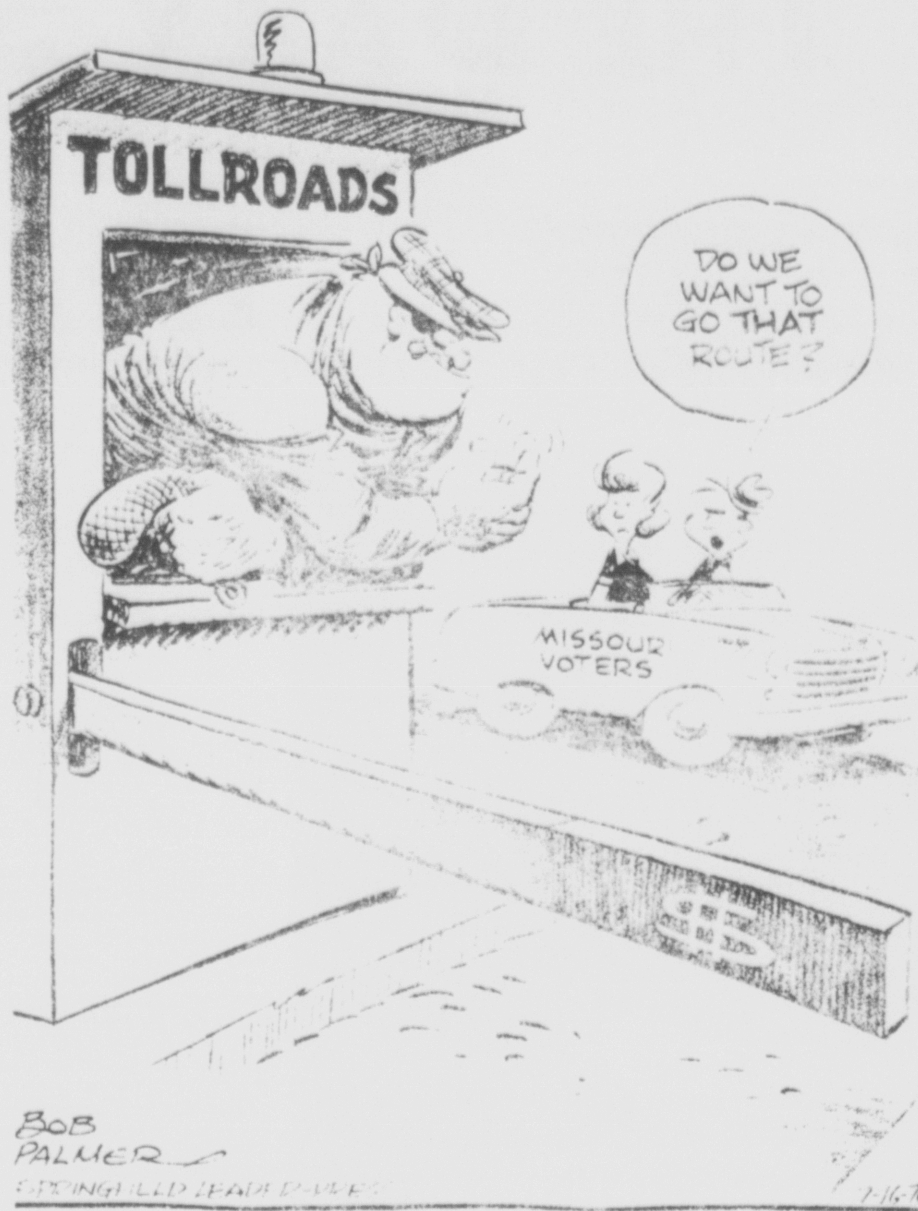

"I'm happy to tell you, Mr. Brownbaum, that your first series of X-rays were completely negative." My technician goofed. Now we'll take some more and find out what's actually wrong with you.

"Normally, of course, I wouldn't be caught dead going to a dirty movie, but according to the critics this one has some redeeming features."—It's real dirty.

"That sounds like pure malicious gossip about Sylvia. How can you believe a word of it?"—I always knew she was a tramp. Tell me more.

"Your word alone is always good enough for me, Frank."—But let's put it in writing and have it notarized, shall we, old pal?

SYMINGTON HAS BEEN "HEARIN' YOU" FOR 18 YEARS

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — At an all-day session so secret that no transcript was kept, Ambassador G. McMurtrie Godley told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last week that he could foresee no end to the "hidden war" in Laos.

This remote Buddhist kingdom, beloved by its gentle people as the Land of the Million Elephants and the White Parasol, has been devastated by a war no one wants to mention. Any acknowledgement would be a diplomatic embarrassment to Washington, Moscow and Hanoi alike, all bound by a 1962 Geneva pact to uphold Laotian neutrality.

Yet Godley reported behind closed doors that the fighting already has made refugees of 700,000 luckless Laotians, people who by nature would rather make love than war. This is nearly one-third of the nation's 2.6 million population.

He also admitted that the U.S. is financing this unpunished, unhappy war to the tune of half-a-billion dollars a year. An aggrieved Senator Frank Church, D-Idaho, pointed out that the cost of destruction in Laos was close to $500 per capita — five times the $90 per capita income that the people live on.

HASSLE OVER SECRECY
The hearing opened with a 30-minute hassle over the secrecy restrictions. The State Department insisted that only one transcript be made that it be kept under lock at the department and that the shorthand tapes be destroyed.

Chairman William Fulbright, — Ark., and Senator Stuart Symington, D-Mo. protested vigorously. This would set a precedent, they contended, that would erode the committee's right to question U.S. officials. In the end, they decided to keep no transcript at all but to treat the hearing as an informal briefing.

Once everyone was sworn to secrecy, Godley gave frank answers that aren't supposed to be spoken out loud. But the secrecy was imposed merely to avoid offending diplomatic sensibilities. This column believes the people's right to know is more important.

The bluff, affable Godley acknowledged that the U.S. was paying almost all the bills, military and civil alike, in Laos. Between $25 million and $35 million, he said, goes to support the Royal Lao government. This helps to cover even the palace expenses of King Savang Vatthana, who presides over both sides in the civil war.

The huge American military investment gives Godley the right, he explained, to veto any military operations. He assured the Senators that Premier Souvanna Phouma not only sanctioned the devastation that has been wreaked upon his poor country but had sought even more air raids than the Americans had been willing to fly.

POOR BATTLE RECORD
Godley admitted that the Royal Lao Army, despite all its expensive American equipment, has a poor battle record. He attributed this, in part, to "a leadership problem."

He was much more proud of the CIA-subsidized guerrilla army of Meo tribesmen, led by General Vang Pao, a foul-mouthed former sergeant in the French Army. The U.S. has more control over Vang Pao's 14,000-man army, which is trained by American combat veterans now on the CIA payroll.

Senator Church recalled an amendment he and Senator John Cooper, R-Ky., had pushed through Congress last year, barring the use of American guard troops in Laos. He asked Godley whether the amendment had been violated.

The Ambassador replied that no ground troops had been requested by the Royal Lao government and that none had been introduced. This was a policy, he said, that had his full agreement.

He acknowledged, however, that the U.S. is conducting most of the air war. Villages occasionally were hit, he said, to deny the use of the facilities to communist troops. The villages were supposed to be empty and civilians were never intentionally killed. But he admitted that We're glad that Danforth literature and billboards carry a bigtype statement "I hear you". Just what the attorney-general hears isn't quite clear to us, but we are reminded that:

Senator Stuart Symington has been hearing you - and doing something about it - for almost 18 years.

Stuart Symington first ran for and was elected to office in 1952, taking office in 1953.

Immediately, he began an intelligent, intensive and systematic examination of the needs of Missouri — not just one section, but of all sections.

In those almost 18 years he has been of help in every county, every hamlet, every city and town in Missouri. His work at Washington has resulted in bringing billions of dollars worth of contracts to Missouri, resulting in jobs for many thousands of people who might otherwise have had no job, or if they had, would have been forced to go out of Missouri to get that job.

He has done so much for Missouri it would be impossible to list all of it, just as he has done so much for his nation it would also be impossible to list all of it.

civilian casualties are higher than the world realizes.

Fulbright asked for the number of refugees the war had "generated" in Laos and got the 700,000 figure out of Godley. When Senators expressed their shock, the Ambassador said he regretted the heavy suffering of the Laotian people but claimed this saved American lives in South Vietnam. It was "better," he said, for the Laotians than the Americans to take the "punishment."

HAMPERING HANOI

The intensive military operations in Laos, he added, tied down two North Vietnamese divisions and hampered the flow of supplies to enemy troops in South Vietnam.

Church asked why the North Vietnamese, if they were suffering such damaging blows in Laos, didn't simply take over the country. He pointed out that Hanoi has 400,000 regular troops who haven't been committed beyond North Vietnam's borders.

Godley agreed that North Vietnam probably had the military power to conquer Laos, but suggested that the U.S. would make it too costly.

Church asked how long the strange war in Laos was likely to last.

Unless a settlement for all Indochina should be worked out in Paris, Godley replied, he foresaw no end to the fighting.

Pressing, Church asked whether any cutbacks were planned. Godley said there was "no planned reduction, no phase-out" in the works.

Sensors who listened all day to Godley said he was fired up with enthusiasm. One Senator described him as "exhilarated" over the experience of running the war in Laos. Another called him a "backstage generalissimo"; still another said he was "frank and friendly."

Meanwhile, the passive Laotian people, more than most others, have no interest in fighting and, no doubt, would quickly settle back to their peaceful ways — if only the North Vietnamese and the Americans would go home and leave them alone.

But to bring his local accomplishments nearer home, a list is being compiled now on what he has heard from Monroe Countians about their needs and wants, and what he has done about it. The list will be published soon.

During the present campaign and until he is re-elected in November, every time you see one of those Danforth statements, "I Hear You", remember that:

Senator Symington has already "Heard You", and has done something about it, and that due to his prestige and experience at Washington, he is better equipped to continue to hear us and to continue to do something about it than Danforth or any other Freshman Senator could or would. — Paris Appeal.

The U.S. Air Force can observe its beginnings back to 1907 when an aeronautical division was set up in the Office of the Chief Signal Officer. The new division was set up to supervise all matters relating to "military ballooning and air machines".

THE APPROACHING ELECTION

It is customary for columnists and commentators to describe just about all elections as "crucial." In a way they are right. Each election, be it for a school board or the congress, determines to a large extent the course of progress for our community.

As November approaches, the writers again will be talking about the forthcoming "crucial" election. How much thought have you given it? Have you made inquiry as to the stand on issues of your local candidates as well as those men running for those august bodies in Washington, D.C. and state capitals.

It might be fruitful to keep a record on the campaign platforms of each candidate whose name will appear on the ticket in your precinct. Then measure his promises against past performances if he has previously held office or if he has any kind of record in civic affairs.

How constructive has he been in the field of politics? Has he been a proponent of foreign aid that throws your tax dollar down the drain? What has he accomplished in local office?

The victor in any election has become a servant of the public. Choosing the right candidate is very important. Once he takes the oath of office the responsibility of service is his. But in November the responsibility of selection is yours. One is as vital as the other.

The candidate of your choice, as well as the party, will need active support in the field during the campaign. Talking to your friends and neighbors about the man or woman you think would serve best will further the constructive cause of Republic USA. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

THE COMPLAINING PLUMBER: "Cost of Living" Hysteria Obscures Actual Deflation

Washington, D.C.: — So this chap lounging in a fashionable hotel here turns to his companion and asks in a sudden philosophic mood: "If you found a million dollars in the lower lobby, would you return it?"

There follows a reflective moment and the friend replies: "Certainly, if a poor family lost it."

All of which reminds me of a feature-writing colleague who decided the other day to bleed in print over the travail of a Chicago plumber who was having a rough go of it, making the proverbial ends meet. It all sounds strange since the going rate for plumbers there is at least $6.20 an hour in cash and more in fringes. And that national rate is $7.51 an hour of which $6.39 is cash — all before overtime.

Bitterly the plumber complained to the New York correspondent that it was all the fault of the Cost of Living (COL) and inflation which is constantly charged with eating away everything though everybody in the trades appears to be eating fairly heavily.

Analysis of the plaintive plumber's lament, however, revealed that he owns his own house, he sends his children to a private school, he drives a fairly new Oldsmobile and has a new color television set.

Well, things are tough all over. And what makes them tougher is that the Bureau of Labor Statistics keeps pouring out figures which tell the nation that all their past gains are being eroded by the increasing cost of living average, officially known as the Consumer Price Index — which I submit is an utterly misleading figure.

It doesn't measure the true cost of living. It doesn't measure or take into consideration the change in quality, tastes, standard of living and actual cost of living.

It simply measures the cost of certain items over a certain period of time and then the public is told by short order print and TV specialists that it now costs $14 to buy what $10 would have gotten you in the 1957-1959 base period.

Then the rank and file of many unions rush into their leaders' headquarters and truly shout and tumult that they must have so much more — and in cash — or they'll throw out the leaders along with any contract they make. Just look at the most significant wage agreement in this negotiation period — the teamsters. It probably will be the subject of the first inflation alert scheduled to be sent to President Nixon on Aug. 6.

Acting Teamsters' president Frank Fitzsimmons got his 450,000 drivers a final deal it was accepted. Then the militancy balked and it had to be junked. The new pact will cost some six billion dollars it is said.

Also in the first inflation alert, there will be mentioned of the strong market and skyrocketing prices of used cars.

Well, just look at the recent statement issued by the zealous New York North-eastern New Jersey Area Bureau of Labor Statistics veteran leader, Herbert Biensstock, the Cost of Living, said he, went up 6 per cent in June. That's up front. Deep in his report is the fact that instead of rising sharply, the cost of meat, poultry and fish declined. That seems to me to be the top of any story. But just try and find it.

Furthermore, the increases are for fresh fruit and vegetables — all of which one needs, true. But added to this is the cost of semiprivate and private hospital rooms, the upthrusting price of re-siding a house, fixing one's shrubbery, modernizing the kitchen, repainting the dining room and living rooms and buying a house.

Thus, unless you read the small print, you get the impression that the rise is in "essential goods and services." Well, I can do without new shrubs this season.

Thus the official Consumer Price Index gives the impression that every month every family gets someone into a semiprivate or private hospital room, (usually covered by group insurance anyway) or is rushing out to buy a home or a new television or a used or new car.

It just isn't so. And the Labor Dept. specialists realize it, after a long struggle, and are trying to develop a new cost of living forum, due next year, which will tell the truth about what it actually costs to live normally — instead of just measuring a fixed basket each month.

The value of this will be in its tranquilizing effect. The cost of living issue will be in the headlines now for years. Just watch what it does to the ability of United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock to make a reasonable settlement. He will be howled down by rank and fillers pepped up by the COL pills with which they've been dosed.

Fact is that there is a good case of reporting much of today's economy as deflated.

That's the theory of such men as Prof. George Stigler of the University of Chicago. He formerly was president of the American Economic Association. It is the view of the Stigler-type thinkers that when one considers the improvement in quality and functions of such items as man-made fibers (material), televisions, cars and refrigerators, the real money prices are actually lower than they have been.

The scoffers should think well and long before they disdain the deflation theory. No one in my corner believes a plumber should not own his own home, new car and color TV, or send his children to private schools.

But let him not talk in proletarian terms. He's not exactly a worker in chains at a $7.51 hourly wage cost.

It costs more to live well and, dear brother and sister, as they say in the union hall, he is living well.

How Much Grace is Involved When A Girl, 5'10", Climbs out of Car?

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with your conclusion that the husband who wanted his wife to have an affair with another man was trying to degrade her -- or even the score because he had a guilty conscience.

I had a similar experience with my husband. A psychiatrist explained his behavior in quite a different way.

Allen (not his real name) had a disastrous marriage before we met. He caught his wife in bed with her tennis teacher. Allen was not only shocked but deeply hurt. His wife had always been cold to him, but the tennis teacher brought out a side of her he never dreamed existed.

After Allen and I married he was unable to perform sexually half the time. I pretended it didn't matter. He knew better. When he suggested I have an affair with another man (he even offered to hire someone), I was mortified. For years Allen nagged me but I refused, thinking he had to be deranged to suggest such a thing.

When Allen died last year, I went to pieces. My doctor explained that he was hoping to rebuild his shattered self esteem by providing me with something he felt he was depriving me of. I'm sorry now I didn't go along with him. Not for my sake, but for his. -- Eleanor have found comfort in this explanation. Another therapist might have come up with a different one -- and either could have been right.

Dear Elenor: Obviously you

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is the most disorganized person in the world. She spends whole days doing absolutely nothing. Then suddenly she's a whirlwind of activity -- rushing, dashing, yelling, "I have only two hands!" Etcetera.

After a solid week of goofing off, she decided to do EVERYTHING. She sets all the clocks in the house ahead 20 minutes, takes the receivers off the hooks and vows to make every second count. Lately she started something new. She drives to the shopping center with her cereal bowl and milk in her lap "to save time." Our car looks like a garbage truck -- paper napkins, silverware and food all over the place.

This nut I'm married to wouldn't miss your column for anything. So please print my letter and give me the joy of watching her face when she runs into it. Thanks -- Joe From Flint

Dear Joe: Here it is. Now -- how's YOUR face?

Dear Ann Landers: Can a 5'10" gal get out of a sport's car without looking like a baby elephant doing a toe dance?

I'm dating three guys who own thimble-size cars. There must be a dignified way to get out of these baby buggies but I can't figure how to do it. Please come up with some advice -- not only for me but for my suffering sisters. I'm not alone. -- Tree Topper

Dear Topper: I'm 5'2" and I feel like a moose when I try to climb out of a sport's car.

You'll appear less cow-like if you move as close to the door as possible, keep your knees together, put your right leg out first and extend your hand to the gentleman who should be standing there -- if he's a gentleman. (P.S. Be careful not to put all your weight into the grasp or you may flip the guy over on his back.)

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TIPS & TRICKS for TEENS

Mid-Mania is sweeping the country! Not sure which fashion length to go with? Be with it and layer the lengths. Combine a mid-length coat in a patterned fabric over a sleek little something of a mini dress in a solid. Wear a tweed jumper over a short clinging mini knit. Or top a western style dress with a hip-riding midi skirt.

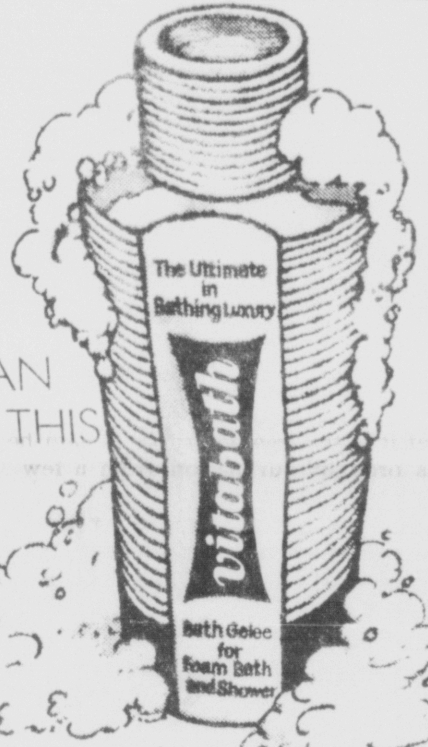

Parties With A Purpose are the funnest way to celebrate, these days. Whether it's a low-cal cookout for the dieting side of your group or a city-beautiful bash after an organized civic clean-up, the purpose-party is all the more fun for the good works involved.

Wigging Out in a prom-pretty or campus-casual hairpiece is the newest way to play the beauty game. New wonder-wigs, wiglets and falls in next-to-no-care synthetic fibers are worth saving allowance or baby-sitting money for. Ideal: own a wardrobe of different styles. Next best bet: choose a basic style that can be restyled to suit your changing fancy.

Sew Long or short fall fashions starting now, in some of the great new fabrics just now coming into the stores. Exhibit A: a group of groovy plaids, Aztec prints, tweeds, knits of Creslan acrylic fiber, all coordinated in the newest colorings, as easy to sew as they are to care for in finished fashions.

Hair still hanging overlong and stick-straight? Get with the 70's look, which, in a word, is SOFT. A swirl of curls; a waffle of waves; a bit of bounce belongs to the hairdos that belong to today.

VITABATH GELÉE.

The enjoyable bath or shower. Yours. With a capful of Vitabath gelée. Like having a spa in your own home. Vitabath gelée deep-cleans (without the drying effects of soap). Even in hard water. Deodorizes (dependably all day long). Helps you unwind -- relaxes and revitalizes. Softens your skin. Soothes and smooths it. Does all this so pleasantly, so fragrantly you'll wonder how you managed so long without it.

Pamper yourself with the Vitabath bath or shower. Famed abroad as batedas, it's a beautiful habit. Once you use it you'll never be satisfied with soap again. In two fragrances: regular Vitabath, a lively, woody scent. Vitabath Pink, a refreshing, floral scent.

ANOTHER JEFFERSON CITY RUN heads for the plate in the second game at VFW Stadium last night at the Jr. Babe Ruth State tournament. Bob Walker, Sikeston's National division catcher, stretches for the tag at the plate, but the run scored as a collision followed, jarring the ball loose. Walker was KO'd in the collision but remained in the game for the Sikeston Stars. Jeff City went on to pick up a 14-7 opening round victory from Sikeston. Sikeston now moves into the losers bracket with a game tonight against Houston, who lost the opener to Ozark 3-2.

Jeff City Impressive

Jefferson City stormed out of opening night action in the Junior state Babe Ruth baseball tournament at VFW stadium last night as the team to beat in the five team affair, gunning down the Sikeston All-Stars 14-7 with a 17 hit attack that included eight extra base hits.

Fans were treated to a great night of baseball action, as the opener went to Ozark, who rallied to defeat Houston 3-2 in eight innings.

The Capitol city crew wasted little time in showing why they made the tournament bracket, as they shot three runs across in the opening inning on four hits, two of which were doubles and used the extra base hit ball to score seven in the third, three in the fifth and one in the sixth.

After averaging nearly nine runs and ten hits per contest in their district tourney, Jeff City made the trip to Sikeston with plenty of power and big bats to spare.

Jeff City's Gene Robinson paced the winners at the plate with four big hits, including a double, and held down the pitching chore for Coach Augie Begemann's Capital crew.

After trailing 3-0 in the first inning, the Sikeston nine picked up four big runs in the second off of two hits, two errors and two fielder's choices and had for the first and last time of the game, a 5-3 edge.

Seven runs in the following three hits, including a double and a triple, along with three errors to pick up the lead for the remainder of the game.

Jeff City's Robinson held the Sikeston battery to six individual singles that produced seven runs in picking up the opening round victory. La Plant was handed the loss for Sikeston, and was later relieved by Breedlove, who added several innings of relief work.

The opening contest between Houston and Ozark went all the way down to the last inning, and then some, as Ozark picked up the winning run in the bottom of the eighth to edge Houston 3-2.

Crowell picked up a lead off single in the eighth for Ozark and scored the deciding run after Janic and Heiskell followed with game winning singles.

Houston's two runs were lone scores in the fifth and seventh innings. Ozark had to scramble for two runs in the bottom of the seventh to move the game into the 2-2 deadlock. Ozark's rally continued on in the next and final inning where they crossed the plate with the winning run.

Crowell, Heiskell, and Copeland led the Ozark 10 hit attack with two safeties each. Mustion added a double in the hitting department.

Fowler picked up the relief victory for Ozark with the final inning of work to his credit, and teamed with Arnett to hold the Houston battery to only four hits, which included a lone double by Collins. Carter was handed the defeat for Houston, who's remaining hits were lone singles from Baker, Carter, and Edgington.

Going to School on Shoestring Possible

ROLLA - In spite of the rising cost of everything, including university fees, you can still go to school on a shoestring.

Because of a need to support the 1970-71 general operating budget of the University of Missouri, the Board of Curators has approved an increase of $30 per semester for the incidental fee of students attending any of the four campuses of the University of Missouri. Non-resident tuition was increased by $60 per semester. However, officials at the University of Missouri - Rolla try to make financial aids available at UMR to help the student in need to attend at a minimal cost.

Students can receive financial aid from such sources at UMR as part-time jobs, the cooperative engineering science training program, scholarships, scholarship loans, grants, loan funds, and for graduate students, trainships and research and teaching assistantships. Students who are of high ability can "quize out" of several of their elementary subjects, allowing them to complete their education in less time.

A student at UMR who is a Missouri resident, can expect to get by on about $1,710 for two semesters of study. This will go for room and board ($940) fees ($535), textbooks, ($100), drawing instruments ($35), laundry and cleaning ($50), and miscellaneous ($50). No allowance is made here for such expenses as clothing, amusement, traveling, or organization dues. For out-of-state students, the cost is the same, plus about another $920 for non-resident tuition.

If these basic costs are more than an individual can afford, students can look into ways to provide financial aid for themselves. One form of help is a special program which has been in effect for several years to provide students with extra funds and experience working in their field. The cooperative engineering science training program allows students to alternate semesters of study at UMR with semesters of work in industry. A UMR office coordinates interviews for students and industries. In many cases, students can earn enough to finance their entire school career. Although it is possible for students to finish school in the average amount of time, co-op students usually require one additional semester to obtain a degree.

Undergraduate students who have a particular aptitude for certain subjects can take examinations in those subjects without taking the courses, and may upon passing the examination, obtain credit for the courses. This "quizzing out" of certain subjects allows students to complete their education in less time, requiring less financial aid.

A college work-study program provides funds from the U.S. office of Education to pay students for part-time work done at UMR. There are 180 such jobs available for the 1970-71 academic year. Time of the fee increase fees "a clerks and secretaries and at various other jobs on campus. In addition, students can often Loans vary in amount and are usually provided with little or no interest. Students, in most cases, are allowed to repay the loans after they have been graduated and are settled in a job. Recipients are usually selected by a faculty committee on the basis of their academic ability, service, or their post-graduate goals. UMR has about $178,000 available for the 1970-71 academic year for student loans.

For graduate students at UMR, there are several opportunities for financial aid. Graduate students in most instances, do research on a project as part of their thesis work. Many of these students receive stipends from grants supporting their research.

Often graduate students teach as graduate assistants. There are 150 graduate teaching assistantships for the coming academic year. There are also 250 fellowships and research assistantships for the 1970-71 academic year for graduate students. Some of these are still available.

University of Missouri President John C. Weaver, called the move to increase fees "a most unfortunate necessity."

But, students can still get by on a minimum of expense at UMR, and if they need it, they should apply for financial aid.

Even Remote Areas Hurt By Mercury

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senators probing the geographical scope of mercury pollution have been told remote regions of American are contaminated by the poisonous residues.

"We may now be experiencing the greatest environmental crisis in our history," said Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., chairman of a Senate environmental subcommittee.

The deadly mercury compounds even have been discovered in Vermont's Silver Lake, an isolated body of water located atop a mountain and accessible only by foot or four-wheel drive vehicle, the panel was told Wednesday.

Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., said the lake located deep in a national forest "has no industry whatever. But it does have mercury contamination."

Vermont is not heavily industrialized, has none of the chemical plants usually identified as prime polluters and uses almost no mercury-based agricultural compounds, Prouty said.

"So where does the mercury come from?" Prouty asked. The state is trying to find out through "a truly outstanding job of research to combat mercury pollution," he added, but "at the moment we are stumped by our lack of knowledge. We cannot even identify all the sources of mercury contamination."

Prouty said 20 states have mercury pollution problems in fish and water resources. The mercury residues remain in the environment for up to 100 years after dumping, he added.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader contended "the forces of industrial irresponsibility and official paralysis continued unabated" despite early warnings from abroad and by environmental experts.

"The discovery" of this mercury epidemic may be of environmentalists what thalidomide was to advocates of control over drug company abuses in the early '60s," he added. "That is, mercury may generate genuine concern and artificial remedies for the larger problem of environmental violence of which it is a part."

Dr. Albert J. Fritsch, technical consultant to Nader, called for an immediate ban on mercury compounds used as fungicides. He also proposed licensing mercury uses and imposing stiff penalties on direct emission of mercury into the environment.

The United States has consumed 163 million pounds of mercury during this century, he added, and "we doubt if more than a quarter of this can be presently accounted for."

"If only half of this expended mercury is distributed uniformly and allowed to become soluble," he said, "our entire fish and water supply would be contaminated beyond human consumption."

800 Students

Music Camps

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Between 800-850 students are expected on the Southeast Missouri State College campus next week and Aug. 9-14 for the second and third music camps of the summer sponsored by the college's division of music.

Most of the students will be of junior high and senior high age, but a few may be in the elementary grades. Any student who has had one year of band experience or one year of lessons may qualify for the beginners' groups.

During each of the two camps, there will be two beginners' bands, three junior high bands, two choral groups, one string group, and one twirlers' group, according to LeRoy Mason, director of the camps and chairman of the Division of Music.

This is the 13th year the camps to operate. They have grown in size from an enrollment of 220 the first year

Sikeston, Mo.
Dear Sir:

I wish to write this letter to commend you and your Police force on the fine performance of every one of your officers involved when my father passed away and was laid to rest on July 14, 1970. As we were in the Funeral procession for my father, Rev. Bedford L. Robinson Sr. I could not help but notice how respectful everyone of your officers were. Each intersection was guarded and traffic was stopped for the passage of the Funeral Procession and every officer was standing there with his hat removed in respect as the procession passed. You do not see this in many cities and the Police Department is to be commended for this and the City of Sikeston is indeed fortunate to have such a fine Department.

Our sincere thanks to you and your fine Department.

Dear Chief Bruce:

We are pleased to inform you that the memorial for Grover Kelley has been installed. It seems that even in death Grover was to have problems. This memorial was lost during the Truckers strike and we were finally able to locate it.

You may want to post this letter on your Bulletin Board so that all that contributed to the purchase of this memorial may read it.

Sincerely,

Bond Says First
Task Will Be Audit
Of Hearn's Office

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) - A Republican candidate for nomination as state auditor, Christopher (Kit) Bond, commented Tuesday on what he said was a designation of him by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes as a principal target for 1970.

Bond said Hearnes, a Democrat, "is well aware that the audit report on his office covering the period up to June 30, 1969 still has not been released to the public."

"He knows that my first orders of business will be to audit the administrative branch of state government, to analyze the use of state-owned aircraft and to scrutinize the expenses account of the governor's administrative assistant, Floyd Warman. The governor has reason to want to block the election of Kit Bond as state auditor."

Bond conferred here Monday with state Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage. Webster is to lead a debate in Carthage Aug. 12 on state finances. State Comptroller John Vaughn is to represent the administration's position in the debate.

BOLDUC HOUSE BUILT BY
B. B. BOLDUC, 1840

THE 185-YEAR-OLD BOLDUC HOUSE in Ste. Genevieve, has been restored and furnished with late-18th century pieces. It will be one of the ancient homes open during the annual Jour de Fete celebration, Aug. 8-9.

Ste. Genevieve Celebrates Birthday In Annual Jour de Fete Aug. 8-9

STE. GENEVIEVE— The town of Ste. Genevieve celebrates its birthday Aug. 8-9, during the annual Jour de Fete (Days of Celebration) observance.

Tourist and townsman alike seem to have a rip-roaring time in the little community during those two delightful days— you'd think someone would know how old the little town is. But nobody does.

The founding date passed down from generation to generation is 1735, but as more and more material on this fascinating little town is published, that date seems to be pure fiction. The pioneer French started working the fabulous lead mines to the west in 1723.

and the heavy metal was loaded onto rafts at "Le Grand Champ," the big field just below the present town, and site of the original town of Ste. Genevieve. The lead was moved down the Mississippi to the five-year-old town of New Orleans, then loaded onto ocean-going vessels for Europe.

Historians don't believe that the transporters fought the Mississippi currents over to their homes in the thriving city of Kaskaskia every night after work, or even more unrealistic, upriver to the headquarters of the mining operation at Fort de Chartres. They most likely pitched tents and soon erected cabins on the bank. That had to be the start of Ste. Genevieve, some 40 years before St. Louis became a gleam in the eye of Pierre Laclede.

But whether the town is 247 years old or 235, it still retains the kind of charm that singled it out in the early literature of the West. Early travelers from European capitals would blunt their goose quills describing the crude and raucous society at the rugged frontier town of St. Louis, then wax ecstatically about the grace and gentility of the European-oriented civilization of the more refined town of Ste. Genevieve.

For all the Jour de Fete hullabaloo, the hell-raising street bands, parade, the Kings Ball and the dancing of the ancient LaGuignolee, the real reason most people go to Ste. Genevieve is the houses themselves. There is no greater structural legacy of the 18th century in the western hemisphere than there is in little Ste. Genevieve.

There are at least 50 buildings between 150 and 200 years old, and every year or two some townsman finds to his surprise that his own home has walls of vertical logs— the tell-tale sign that the house was erected in the 18th century. Some of these homes have been beautifully restored, and will be open to the public during the Jour de Fete.

Included is the famed Bolduc House, believed built about 1785, and perfectly restored and furnished to its original configuration. Also open will be the Amoureux House, a towering, Black-sided edifice overlooking Le Grand Champ, which is believed to date to 1770. It is one of the great examples of Creole design in the Mississippi Valley.

Across Main street from the Bolduc is the charming Beauvals House, restored just a year ago, which also is believed to date to the early 1770s. This house was described in great detail by young Henry Brackenridge, who was sent there in the 1790s to learn French from the family of Vital St. Gomme Beauvals.

The Old Brick restaurant, usually jammed to its 170-year-old rafters with people seeking its legendary food, sits on the edge of the town square. It is now closed but visitors may walk around it and observe the old building's construction techniques. Diagonally through that block is the Mammy Shaw house and the adjacent Fur Trading Post, both open to the public and both dating to the 18th century.

Next to the Bolduc is the Bolduc-LeMeilleur, restored only last year, and described as a splendid example of transitional building design, from the grace of the French to the utility of the Americans. It was built about 1820. The old Green Tree Tavern is again open to the public, standing as it did 170 years ago, just up the St. Marys

Genevieve.

One of the most thrilling experiences any tourist could have is a walk through the old Ste. Genevieve Memorial Cemetery, at fifth and Market streets. Most of the families who built the historic homes are buried there, and their original headstones, now are being restored by the Foundation for Restoration of Old Ste. Genevieve.

But there are things other than famous houses on the itinerary of the Ste. Genevieve tourist. Nearly a dozen antique dealers from as many different communities will display their wares in a single large tent. More than an acre of outdoor display space along Market street will be devoted to arts and crafts from eastern Missouri. Amateur weavers will ply their art in display windows Saturday and Sunday.

Authentic French, German and Spanish foods will be dispensed in an outdoor dining area on the town square. The prize-winning motion picture, "Ste. Genevieve— a French Legacy" will be shown in Valle High School.

The highlight of this year's Jour de Fete will be a race by a flotilla of birchbark canoes of the Boyageur Canoe Club, Chicago, from historic Fort de Chartres to old Ste. Genevieve. The race will start at 1 p.m. Canoeists will participate in the annual parade at 2:30 p.m. Both events will take place Sunday.

All during the Jour de Fete a hardy group of localities will move from one location to another playing the stirring marches of a generation ago. And then it will all be over for another year, and the little town will slip back into the gentle, quiet pattern of life that has resulted in the most remarkable story of historic preservation in the Middle West.

Four others, with grade point averages between 3.5 and 3.74, will graduate magna cum laude.

They are Mrs. Wanda Alberta Davenport of Festus, Donald Jams Eike of St. Louis, Mrs. Eileen Marie Fronabarger of Jackson, and Miss Vicki Ann Maurer of Cape Girardeau.

There is no limit on the number of guests a graduating student may bring to the commencement if it is held, as scheduled, out-of-doors. However, if the event is forced indoors, only three guests per student will be admitted due to limited seating. Each graduating student is being mailed three tickets to prepare for this possibility.

Little Contest In Auditor Race

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — There's no primary election contest for auditor on the Republican ticket and not much of on the Democratic side.

Christopher (Kit) Bond of Mexico, Mo., is the only Republican candidate. At 31 he is the former head of the attorney general's consumer protection division and is an active campaigner. He lost a close race for Congress in the 9th District in 1968.

On the Democratic side the race is between Haskell Holman, state auditor since his appointment in 1953, and a former director of the division of industrial inspection, Donald L. Cummings of St. Louis.

Holman does not make many speeches but he tries to attend as many public gatherings as possible, shaking hands and telling voters who he is.

Holman, 61, is a native of Moberly a graduate of the University of Missouri and has been in state employment since 1933. He was first hired by the late Gov. Forrest Smith when Smith was state auditor.

Holman was appointed income tax supervisor in 1941 and served as assistant state treasurer from 1949 to 1953.

Cummings, 56, is a St. Louis businessman who has not been making an active campaign across the state. He was director of industrial inspection from 1962 to 1966.

Bond has been working full time in his campaign for the auditor's office since he resigned as an assistant attorney general last June 15. He has many speeches. He was graduated cum laude from Princeton University School of Public and International Affairs and later got his law degree from the University of Virginia.

Also on the state wide ballot next Tuesday are three proposed constitutional amendments with only one of them considered as having a chance of adoption.

It is a court reform proposal that has the support of the Missouri bar and most jurists in the state, although some have complained it does not go far enough.

Primarily, it would make retirement of judges mandatory at the age of 70. It also would set up a special commission to decide whether judges should be allowed to remain on the bench when they are accused of some crime or abuse of office or when their mental or physical ability is questioned.

$55,000 Lid Per Crop Foes Claim Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of a House move to cut the $55,000 farm-subsidy ceiling aren't ready to predict victory yet but claim growing support for a $20,000 limit per crop.

"I think we're making progress," Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., said of the bipartisan move Thursday.

Conte, who is leading the drive to go along with the Senate on the $20,000 figure, has the support of Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and of the AFL-CIO, Americans for Democratic Action, the Urban Coalition Action Council and other groups.

The test may come next week when debate is expected on the three-year farm bill to which the subsidy ceiling is attached.

The $55,000 per-crop limit to any producer was set by the House Agriculture Committee last week.

There is no limit under present law on the amount a grower can be paid by the federal government for not planting crops. Five payments of more than $1 million each were made last year for the three crop categories involved: cotton, wheat and feed grains. The largest was $4,370,657 to the J. G. Boswell Co. of Corcoran, Calif., a major cotton producer.

Conte wants to cut the ceiling to $20,000 for those three crops. Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., wants to extend the limit to wool payments.

Some members argue that a $20,000 ceiling might endanger passage of the over-all farm bill. But others suggest such talk might be only a scare tactic.

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin backs the $55,000 figure approved by the committee. But proponents of a lower ceiling claim the White House has remained silent on the issue.

The key vote is expected on an attempt to substitute the lower figure. That probably will be decided on a non-record tally in which members file down the aisle and are counted—but not recorded individually—by tellers.

If the substitute passes, the issue would be subject to a roll-call vote later.

The House has voted twice to impose a $20,000 payment limit. But each time it was dumped by House-Senate conferees.

Borman Eyed As Space Boss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman, commander of the first manned spacecraft to circle the moon, is a front-runner in capital speculation about who will be named boss of the nation's space agency.

Borman left active duty with the Air Force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration July 1 to become a vice president of Eastern Airlines.

His name is cropping up frequently in official circles as among those who might be named by President Nixon to succeed Thomas O. Paine, who resigned Tuesday to return to private business.

Others mentioned include George Low, NASA deputy administrator; Dr. Wernher von Braun, the No. 4 man at the agency; Dr. Homer E. Newell, associate administrator; Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, former Apollo program manager and now commander of the Air Force Space and Missiles System Organization; Dr. Hillard Paige, one time president of General Electric Co.'s space division and Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr.

Borman, 42, was at President Nixon's side during the Apollo 11 moon landing flight and accompanied the President to watch the splashdown of the spacecraft in the Pacific. After retiring as an active astronaut, Borman was field director for the orbiting space station program—the next phase in America's space program.

Borman joined the airline only a month ago and is scheduled to attend an advanced management program at Harvard University in September. His office said he was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

There has been no word from the Western White House on the President's choice, and Paine, at a news conference, would not speculate on his successor.

Official circles believe the President will need to choose a new administrator quickly because the agency's 1972 budget proposals must be in by the end of August. Decisions will need to be made on future goals in preparing the budget.

Paine himself was acting administrator for five months while the search went on for a top man. He was finally chosen after at least six men turned down the job. It was known at the time that President Nixon wanted a Republican—and Paine was a Democrat.

Low, an aeronautical research scientist, has been with NASA and its predecessor agency since 1949. But the Austria-born Low, 44, is considered a colorless individual.

Laird Seems Favorable To Military Reform Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird appears willing to adopt a blue-ribbon panel's recommendation to cut the Joint Chiefs of Staff out of military operations.

But Pentagon officials said Wednesday Laird is unlikely to act until he has consulted all uniformed service heads, civilian secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and key members of Congress.

The defense chief also was described as unlikely to override any major congressional opposition to the plan.

The proposal was one of 113 recommendations made recently by the White House appointed panel that urged stronger civilian control over military affairs.

FT. LEAVENWORTH, KAN. — Army National Guard Major John M. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Taylor, Essex, Mo., recently completed Phase 10 of the command and general staff officer course at the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. He was on the Commandant's List.

The course, which was attended by officers from the active Army, Army National Guard and Army Reserve, is organized into 10 phases and gives over a five-year period. Each summer for four years, students attend two weeks of active duty schooling in their own Army areas or through extension courses. On the fifth year they complete their final two-week phase of the course at Ft. Leavenworth.

The training is designed to prepare selected officers for responsible positions at division and support command levels. It also provides them with an understanding of the duties of corps and field army general staff officers, and of Army participation in joint and combined operations.

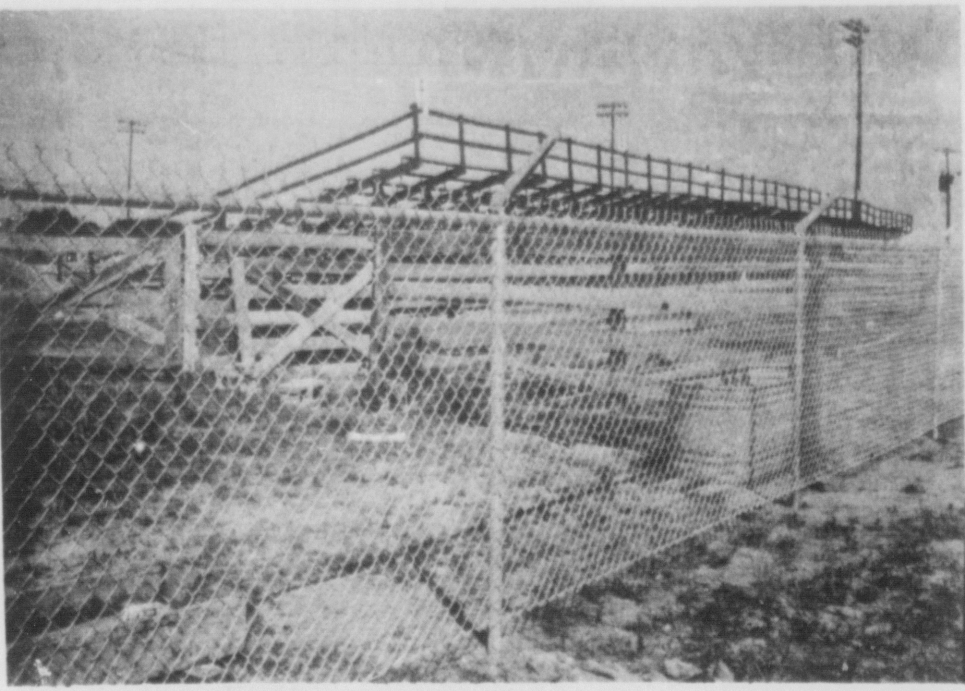

Maj. Taylor is a staff assistant with the 204th Military Police Battalion, Missouri Army National Guard, St. Louis, Mo. He and his wife, Sylvia, live at 10978 Norgatehall, Bridgeton, Mo.

CYCLONE FENCING, about six feet high, has been installed around half the perimeter of the Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo grounds. President Gene Yokley says the organization plans to complete replacing the woven wire perimeter fence before the 1971 rodeo. Inside the cyclone fence, enlarged calf pens are enclosed in new board fencing. The pen is about ten feet wider, and is about six feet farther from the seating than before. A new chute has also been completed.

PRIVACY for toilet patrons has been provided by construction of this six-foot board fence at the Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel rodeo grounds. This is one of the three toilet facilities which equipped with running water.

Jaycees Gird for Rodeo

Jaycees are nearly ready for three. Charles McGill, Rodeo Aug. 6-9. General Chairman, said that advance ticket sales amount to the new concrete block, $8,000, $2,200 ahead of last concession stand cost $2,500. year's sales.

Bill Burch, past chairman, erected near rest rooms, and said auxiliary police will direct running water is available in all traffic and assist in parking cars.

Why Amendment No. 2?

It started in 1796. Guess our forefathers figured this was a way to get something done that had to be done. New roads. Better roads. Safer roads. So a hundred and seventy-four years ago, America's first toll road came into being. So a toll road is not exactly a new or startling idea, is it?

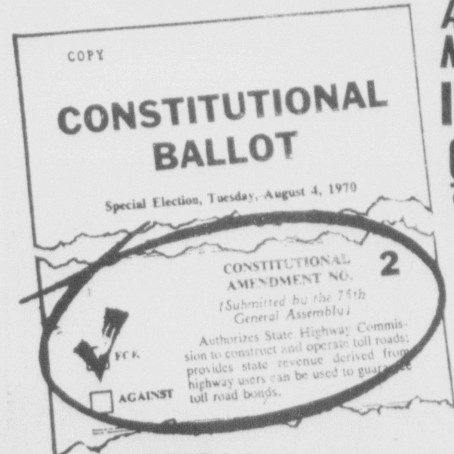

Amendment No. 2 is THE answer. A solution to getting the new, better roads we need... and getting them now.

And getting these roads without increasing taxes. Without taking anything away from our existing highway system of primary and secondary roads. Even having the same people plan them, engineer them, and maintain them.

Everything stays the same except one thing... the way they're paid for: and they are paid for by the people who choose to use them. Only those people, and that includes out-of-state drivers.

Does it work? Consider this: every single toll road in the country is self-supporting. Every one of them. And that includes the better highway facilities in twenty different states. In a recent announcement, the Missouri State Highway Commission assured Missouri voters that any Turnpike construction would be paid back to the Road Fund before the road was declared free.

Next Tuesday, vote FOR Amendment No. 2. Vote FOR toll roads.

A NEW CONCESSION building at the Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo grounds is nearing completion. It will be ready for hungry rodeo fans during the Aug. 6-9 performances. The open area at the right of the air conditioning unit is a storage facility. The windows across the left, serving windows, face the arena and are sun-shaded by the extended roof overhang. At the left and to the rear, one toilet building is now shielded from view by a six feet tall privacy fence at either end of the building.

NAILS WILL NOT be served at this soft drink stand during the Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo. There are from the old calf pen fence. The pen was enlarged and the new fencing assembled with new lumber and new nails. Most of them carry traces of the dark green enamel which was used on the old fence.

Need for Improvements Hampers Haywood City

CITY COUNCIL MEMBER Henry Jefferson stands in front of a recently graded area for a street in Haywood City. The present street is at the right.

A GRADER provided by the Scott county road department is shown mapping a boundary for a street in Haywood City.

HAYWOOD CITY — Citizens of Haywood City believe they are entitled to Missouri gas tax funds but a member of the Scott county court at Benton said there is doubt about the incorporation of the town.

Two Volunteers In Service

To America young men reported yesterday that the residents of the community have been unable to acquire the funds for street improvements provided for incorporated towns.

Judge Robert M. Davis of the Scott county court at Benton said there is a legal question concerning the incorporation.

Johnny Reynolds, 24, of Cleveland, Tenn., and Bob Kotowski, 23, Rochester, N.Y., members of a VISTA agency assigned to Scott county, have been living and working with the residents of Haywood City since the first of February.

"The people of Haywood City need to get together in order to get things done," Reynolds said.

"We came to Sikeston Dec. 12 and looked around for work in Scott county," Reynolds said. "We are not assigned to any particular town or to do any particular thing."

Kotowski said they drove all around Scott county to see where they were needed the most.

"Another guy and I were just driving around and we noticed Haywood City," Kotowski said. "That place seemed to need the most help."

The men said they took a consensus of the people of Haywood City to see what they needed the most. They said in almost every case the condition of the streets was the main concern.

Reynolds said the Haywood City community was incorporated in 1961 and had a functioning town council since 1966. The VISTA workers said the census office in Cape Girardeau had no record of an incorporated Haywood City.

Judge Davis explained that to be eligible for gas funds a community must be incorporated, having a functioning town council, and a population of more than 200.

"There is some doubt about regular town council meetings and the incorporation of Haywood City," the judge said.

The Penemon community near Gray Ridge in Stoddard county has the same problem but the community has no functioning town council.

Reynolds said Haywood City streets have to be improved first before other problems such as a water shortage and a sewage disposal problem can be solved.

Preliminary grading of the Haywood City roads was completed by the Scott county road department, according to City Council Chairman Joe Davis. Earlier this summer the streets were surveyed, a month long task.

"The work was done by a county road grader at county expense," Judge Davis said. "We plan to work with them."

The VISTA workers said the county court has promised the roads will be surfaced. The young men said the sandy, undefined streets have long been a problem in the north Scott county community of 425.

Reynolds and Kotowski said they were trained in Denver, and would remain in Haywood City working with the citizens until December when their one year tour ends.

Reynolds said there are 10 VISTA workers in Bootheel.

Bulletin Seeks To Help Police
Keep Abreast

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — "Too many police officers sit in the courtroom and watch their cases go down the drain because they made a mistake in arresting suspects and preparing their court presentation," says Robert I. Jaquith, assistant professor in the Law Enforcement Department at Central Missouri State college.

"I want to help end this situation," he continues, and "The secret is in a professional approach to law enforcement."

How can law enforcement officers keep up with rapidly changing laws and complicated court decisions? Jaquith's "Missouri Police Law News" is his answer.

The monthly bulletin edited and published by the lawyer is primarily information needed by police officers at the time, or shortly after, a suspect is arrested.

But laws and court cases also are discussed as an aid to law enforcement personnel to avoid false arrest or rights violation situations.

The bulletin notes that, under Missouri law, "both the arresting officer and the party inducing the arrest, or either of them, are responsible for damages in a false arrest situation."

Another question touched on in the current issue of the bulletin relates to the use of a video tape confession as evidence. "Motion Pictures and tape recordings have previously received the O.K. of the court," reads the bulletin, adding "The use of a video tape is a combination of the two ... and may be used after proper authentication."

Jaquith teaches criminal law and rules of evidence courses at Central Missouri State.

BASS vs. DANFORTH

WHERE DO THESE TWO REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES FOR THE U. S. SENATE STAND?

On August 4, Missouri Republicans in the Primary Election will have a clear choice for their United States Senate nominee. They will choose between a Conservative, Mrs. Doris Bass, 43-year-old energetic and highly-informed St. Louis legislator—and a Liberal, John Danforth, 33-year-old State official.

Below are the striking contrasts in the positions of the two GOP candidates on vital issues of the day. Compare them:

MRS. BASS' POSITIONS

CAMBODIA DECISION

Strongly ENDORSED President's decision to destroy Communist sanctuaries to protect lives of American boys and permit continued withdrawal of our troops from Vietnam (Doris is the mother of a son serving with U.S. Army in Southeast Asia).

STUDENT RADICALS

Stood up courageously and alone when physically confronted in March by student radicals intent on intimidating her by threats from pursuing St. Louis legislation with which they disagreed. She refused to be intimidated, got legislation passed.

LEGAL AID TO MILITANTS

Has voted consistently against giving taxpayers money to defend militants who have been disrupting and threatening church services and community stability.

GUN CONTROL REGULATION

Has voted consistently against gun control regulation because of the citizen's constitutional right to bear arms.

POLITICAL INTEGRITY

As a member of the largest urban legislative body in Missouri, her record shows she has never betrayed the trust placed in her by the public.

LEGISLATIVE ABILITY

First Republican in 20 years to get major legislation passed on St. Louis Board of Aldermen and first Republican in 20 years to be elected from her ward.

COLLEGE ADMINISTRATORS

Endorses peaceful student dissent, but calls for dismissal of school heads who permit anarchy on campus.

COMMERCIAL OBSCENITY

Recognizes obscenity exists and sees a relationship between what is publicly presented and accepted and the rising crime rate, drug usage and student unrest. Sponsored and passed a law that re-established a public standard of decency.

MR. DANFORTH'S POSITIONS

CAMBODIA DECISION

Vigorously OPPOSED President's decision with regard to Cambodia. Instead, has called for our immediate pull-out from Vietnam which would, in effect, be our surrender and abandonment of our commitments.

STUDENT RADICALS

Traveled to Washington University in St. Louis when beckoned by student radicals who had burned ROTC building; showed sympathy with their cause in order to obtain their political support.

LEGAL AID TO MILITANTS

Strongly endorsed use of taxpayers' money for lawyers to represent militant groups in trouble with the law.

GUN CONTROL REGULATION

Agreed with county police chief's order to police officers not to shoot suspects unless the crimes were ones that involved the use of deadly force thereby placing police in possible jeopardy while on duty.

POLITICAL INTEGRITY

Successible to influence. In brief time he has been in office, shifted interest free tax money to "friendly" bank of his campaign manager.

LEGISLATIVE ABILITY

"Has no voting record and no legislative experience."

COLLEGE ADMINISTRATORS

Has permissive views towards campus disorders and inactions by college heads to quell campus disruptions.

COMMERCIAL OBSCENITY

Has taken the liberals position of saying obscenity cannot be defined thereby opening the door for anything to be publicly shown which will lead to a relaxation of moral standards.

If You Were The Judge

Doctor Need Not
Heed Patient's Call

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

When chills began running up and down his spine, Phil knew it wasn't that old black magic. In a panic, he dispatched a friend to fetch Dr. Groaner.

As fate would have it, however, Doc Groaner wasn't feeling like a perfect specimen himself at that moment and refused to harken to the call. The result? Without Groaner, Phil was a goner. He died in a few hours.

Blaming her husband's death on the doctor's refusal to heed the call, Phil's wife sued Dr. Groaner.

"Just because I'm a doctor," was the defense, "doesn't mean that I have to jump every time someone sneezes. I'm entitled to stay home and relax like everyone else."

"No, you're not," retorted Phil's widow. "You're a doctor. When someone gets sick, you've got an obligation to come when called. If you had come when Phil called he'd be here with us today."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the doctor pay for staying home and taking it easy? The judge held that a doctor is not obliged to heed a call for medical help. For all intents and purposes, noted the judge in effect, a doctor is no different than a painter or a bricklayer. If he doesn't want to work, there's no requirement that he do so. (Based upon a 1901 Indiana Supreme Court Decision)

McCollum
Convinced Noah's
Ark in Turkey

Danville, Ill., aviator Louis "Watcha" McCollum said he is confident that Noah's Ark is embedded in Turkey's Mt. Ararat, despite a scientist's claim that the search team's main evidence could not have come from the Ark.

McCollum is the son of Mrs. Agnes McCollum and the brother of Hugh McCollum, both of Sikeston.

Dr. Rainer Berger, head of the University of California at Los Angeles Isotope Laboratory said the L-shaped oak beam discovered in 1955 has been dated at 1230 years old, plus or minus 60 years.

"The beam came from a tree felled around A.D. 700 or roughly 3000 years after Noah is believed to have embarked," Dr. Berger said.

But McCollum, who is a aeronautical adviser to the SEARCH Foundation's advisory board, said the beam's age had been placed at 500 years by the University of Bordeaux in France and the University of Madrid in Spain.

The nondenominational SEARCH team is still hopeful of beginning its expedition this summer despite delays caused by near-revolution in eastern Turkey, he said.

McCollum said hot volcanic ash falling on the beam would change its chemical structure, including the carbon-14 count used to determine age, he added.

McCollum noted the continuity in reports of the embedded Ark dating from the Fourth Century B.C. Numerous historians, adventurers, clergymen, and travelers since—including Marco Polo about 1300—reported seeing remains of what they referred to as Noah's Ark.

Egypt Sends Nixon Peace Feelers

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

This reporter has learned that Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser on three separate occasions recently has secretly sent messages through emissaries to President Nixon and the U.S. government in an attempt to develop face-to-face, behind-the-scenes talks on how to solve the Mideast problem.

This reporter has talked with one of those emissaries.

The talks, as proposed, would not be between Nixon and Nasser, but between unofficial representatives picked by the two men. These men could then explore practical ways of getting talks started that might lead to a settlement between the Arabs and Israel.

Nasser wants unofficial talks because, it's understood:

- He doesn't trust some of the top officials now working on the Arab-Israeli conflict, and
- He wants to explore with greater flexibility than is possible through formal diplomatic channels.

Nasser is known to have been impressed, for example, with William Scranton, former governor of Pennsylvania, whom Nixon sent informally to the Middle East shortly after assuming the presidency.

As outlined to this reporter, these proposals would seem to be a basis for talks:

- An agreement to recognize Israel as a state with defined and fixed boundaries.

- Free access to the Suez Canal for all nations, including Israel.

- No closure of the Strait of Tiran. (The 1967 war began shortly after Egypt closed the Tiran Strait, effectively blocking Israeli entry or exit by sea from her port at Elath (Eilat).)

- Jerusalem would be in a sense an open-entry city with all religions and peoples having free access to its religious institutions and memorials.

- A return to the old boundaries.

- Some solution to the Arab refugee problem. The message, as passed on to this reporter, did not make this proposal clear. But it was understood that Nasser would prefer Israel to make provision for these unfortunate people.

In private talks of late with American officials of some standing, Nasser's associates have made it very clear that they are increasingly worried about the growing influence of the Soviet Union in their territories. They assert that this suspicion of Russia is shared by Nasser.

They have been frank to say they are more comfortable with Americans. As one high-placed Nasser aide put it: "You Americans are more like us."

Nasser aides also made it clear they believe the United States is making a mistake in attempting to work as part of a U.S.-Soviet duo. They believe the United States would be more effective if our people would deal directly with the Arab countries and with Israel in informal ways. These Arabs say there remains a great reservoir of good feeling toward the United States among many Arab leaders which could best be tapped in this way.

Washington Report

by Symington

With the second session of the 91st Congress now past the halfway mark, let me take this opportunity to share with you some thoughts on matters which I believe important to both Missouri and the nation.

Though this country is passing through a troubled era, I nevertheless approach the future with confidence. Part of that optimism is congenial; part also represents my abiding faith in the ultimate wisdom of the American people; faith in their ability to meet and overcome the problems which face us, for America is a young nation and a strong nation.

We should look at these problems as challenges—challenges which can be surmounted by dedicated and experienced leadership.

This Senate session has been an unusually busy one, because it reflects, each day, the deep concern over issues which presently trouble our country and divide our people.

We are torn by such differences as those over war, over the color of our skins, and those between generations.

FRESH LOOK AT PRIORITIES

I believe, therefore, that it would be well to take a fresh look at our national priorities—our sense of relative values—for they appear to be badly out of tune with the times.

The United States is bogged down in a war that has brought frustration and increasing distress; and has divided this nation more than any foreign war in our history. In addition, it is this war which has steadily reduced the purchasing power of the dollar to the point where inflation is an increasing part of all our lives. Efforts to curb this inflation have in turn brought growing unemployment, as well as unprecedentedly high interest rates which are driving many businesses to the wall.

It has created an economic situation unique in our history—inflation in the midst of recession—and one that is currently punishing each and every citizen, because now every American bears the brunt of the tight money policy, with the more fortunate bearing a disproportionately smaller share of the burden.

In addition to the Vietnam conflict that has now spread to all the four countries which once constituted Indochina, we currently have worldwide military commitments which place a heavy burden on the American taxpayer. These commitments and adventures have caused us to neglect, for far too long, the pressing needs for improvement in our own society we all know now exist at home.

Negative results from our foreign relations go beyond the high cost of these military commitments. Basic industries and available jobs are both being injured by import competition from countries which the United States, physically as well as financially, has been protecting for a quarter of a century with your and my tax money.

No doubt these policies were wise when they were instituted shortly after World War II; but now they are primarily responsible for these growing dangers to our economy, and therefore our Government should set a new course.

THE IMPACT OF INDOCHINA

One of the nation's great industrialists, Thomas J. Watson, Jr., Chairman of the Board of International Business Machines (IBM), whose brother President Nixon recently appointed as our Ambassador to France, testified before the Senate last month in part as follows:

"The war in Vietnam is the major factor which has turned our healthy economy into an unhealthy one."

In addition, Louis Lundborg, Chairman of the Board of the world's largest bank, the Bank of America, testified before the Senate that:

"In my judgment, the war in Vietnam is a tragic national mistake... It is time the shareholders of America—the people—begin to call for an end to the squandering of American blood, morale and resources on what is, in essence, an Asian war of nationalism."

As many of you know, it was in October, 1967, after six extended trips to Vietnam, that I became convinced the price we were being asked to pay for this military venture—along with all the rules, regulations, and restrictions that were laid down to the military with respect to the war's conduct—made the game not worth the candle.

Therefore when President Nixon, in effect, admitted that no military victory could be achieved and announced a policy of orderly deescalation and withdrawal, he received my support.

Many of us were surprised to discover, however, that at the same time we were deescalating the war openly in Vietnam, we were heavily escalating said war secretly in Laos.

And then came the invasion of Cambodia, without any prior consultation of any kind with the Congress.

As a result, for weeks we have been debating on the floor of the Senate the rights of the Congress, under our Constitution, to participate in decisions that have to do with questions of peace and war. What are the constitutional checks and balances of the Congress with respect to the war-making powers of the President?

More clarity in this field is mighty important, because beyond the economic problems are the personal tragedies which have been brought on by this longest war in our history; over 42,000 dead and some 330,000 wounded.

DEFENSE BUDGET TIED TO FOREIGN COMMITMENTS

The size of our military budget can only be a cause of concern. When I was Secretary of the Air Force just prior to Korea the total military budget for all three services amounted to $13.8 billion; whereas the original budget request for the fiscal year 1970 totalled over $80 billion.

The Senate Majority Leader has pointed out that the current military budget takes each year an average of $375 from every man, woman and child in America; and because this military budget is tailored to our foreign commitments, it seems advisable to find out just what those commitments are.

NEW SUBCOMMITTEE ESTABLISHED

In early 1969 the Senate established the Subcommittee on United States Security Agreements and Commitments Abroad, of which I am Chairman. This Subcommittee is trying to find out the nature and degree of those commitments which require us to support some 384 major military bases and 3,000 minor military installations in foreign countries.

The work of the Subcommittee is now nearly completed, and I believe our report will show that the military budget can be reduced substantially without affecting national security. That is well, because we know how badly we need those savings here at home.

DOMESTIC PRIORITIES OUTLINED

Now let us dwell briefly on what would appear to be our most pressing domestic priorities, problems which demand a much larger investment of our resources if we are to achieve their solution.

EDUCATION

It is hard for most people to realize the degree to which the American educational system, at all levels is currently underfinanced. Federal education programs are being consistently held to dollar levels far below what is needed; and taxes are now so high that last year the people rejected 67 percent of all school bond issues proposed. As a result, many school districts are currently in serious to critical financial straits.

This is unfortunate, because no government programs are more essential or rewarding than those designed to give our children and young adults a good education.

HOUSING AND URBAN DECAY

Urban decay also continues to be a serious problem, and as our population moves steadily toward further concentration in the cities, a coordinated and adequately financed attack on urban ills is imperative.

The people of the United States have long known of the severe shortage of decent housing. This shortage is now becoming critical.

Unprecedentedly high interest rates have been probably the most significant contributors to this building stagnation; and a continuing shortage of new and adequate housing can only contribute further to the decay of the cities.

POVERTY AND WELFARE

Despite some progress in recent years, poverty is still a tragic fact of life for some 25 million Americans. Our poor are about equally divided between the cities and rural areas, and poverty knows no color line; 70 percent of these unfortunate people are white.

The present welfare system is unworkable, encourages family instability, and discourages those physically able to seek jobs. Reforms in this field are needed. Manpower programs require more effective design and coordination. Our goal should be that, after proper training, all seeking work can find work.

CONTROL OF ENVIRONMENT

We are beginning, for the first time, to wage a practical struggle against the waste products created by this industrial society; but to date we are not even holding our own in this contest.

For any real progress, new technology to control pollution must be devised; and existing technology more widely applied. Planning should be realistic. Most air pollution, for example, comes from engines—private cars, trucks, and buses—so of stepped-up federal efforts to develop new forms of mass transit should be stressed. All too often our highway traffic is now bumper to bumper—and further crowding of our airways can only be an additional risk.

Encouraging the growth of smaller towns and creating new communities would reduce the density of our present population. Such towns would also provide more healthful environments for the 100 new farm families who will be added to our population by the end of this century.

Missouri has tremendous potential capacity in its water facilities, primarily because of the two great rivers which either border, or run through, the State. To realize this potential, however, we must keep these waterways fresh and clean; and concentrate on obtaining needed flood control along with water resource development projects.

HEALTH CARE

The cost of health care continues to spiral upward. For too many of our less fortunate citizens, adequate care still remains a privilege rather than a question with the right, and medical personnel remain in short supply.

Only 20 percent of the desired, please send the full money in the federal health name, the address, and the zip budget for the fiscal year 1971 code. Sen. Stuart Symington, will be spent to improve the delivery of health services, to develop new knowledge, and to provide more manpower and more facilities. The bulk of the federal health budget is for Medicare and Medicaid.

CRIME

In effort to curb the very large increase in crime, a bipartisan effort has now brought speedy approval of anti-crime legislation in the Senate. Serious crimes rose nationally last year by 11 percent. Is it not a chilling fact that the North Central States (which include Missouri) showed the greatest increase—15 percent?

State and local officials are pleading for financial assistance in order to improve their police forces, to eliminate the bottlenecks in our courts so as to assure speedy trial, and to make more effective probation and rehabilitation systems.

They should have that assistance; more money for more policemen, and more rehabilitation centers.

NEED TO STRENGTHEN OUR RURAL ECONOMY

For the benefit of all citizens, far greater attention should be given to improving our rural economy. Had there been more and better opportunity in rural areas, millions of Americans might not have migrated to the cities. All too often, because of lack of trained skills these people become part of the growing urban unemployment.

Rural areas can be strengthened by attracting new tourists and by encouraging the development of recreation and tourist facilities to provide more jobs. These actions would in turn increase the tax base badly needed for educational facilities and other public services.

In addition to these programs there is a strong need for basic new farm legislation, so that million Americans who will be added to our population by the end of this century, comparable to that of non-rural America. A sound farm economy is vital to the security and prosperity of this country.
